- When parents live in different states, sometimes it's necessary to have another state's child support agency involved in your child support case.
- If another state's child support agency becomes involved in your child support case, the other parent will be able to get your address or other identifying information.
- If you believe it would be a risk to your children's "health, safety, or liberty" for the other parent to have this information, you may get a Nondisclosure Order from the Circuit Court.
- The other parent doesn't need to know you have requested a Nondisclosure Order. However, they may learn you have a Nondisclosure Order if it is approved by the court.

PLEASE COMPLETE THE FOLLOWING IF YOU NEED A NONDISCLOSURE ORDER

- ☐ I need a Nondisclosure Order because I believe that the "health, safety, or liberty" of me or my children would be at risk. I understand that my enforcement petition will be delayed pending a decision concerning the Nondisclosure Order. I need the order because: (Check all that apply)
- ☐ I have a pre-existing court order for confidentiality. (Attach a copy)
- ☐ I have a Personal Protection, Ex Parte, or Restraining order against the other party (Attach a copy)
- ☐ I have reason to fear physical abuse, harassment and/or stalking. Explain: _____
- ☐ I have reason to fear parental kidnapping. Explain: _____
- ☐ The other party has a criminal record. Explain: _____
- ☐ Other, explain in detail: _____
